WE ARE ANIMAL GUARDIANS • ANNUAL APPEAL 2022

Since December 2021, we have done well with a steady stream of incoming pets. In general, dogs are going to new homes as soon as WAG takes them in. This year we have had an unusually large number of cat surrenders.

WAG has taken in several pets this year with significant medical needs and we have had higher than usual numbers of animals requiring spay and neutering.

Regardless of how long it takes, we keep searching for a permanent home for all of our pets. WAG was founded nearly 30 years ago and people are on their second, third, and sometimes fourth pet from us.

We couldn't do this without your generosity. Your donations are crucial and very much appreciated. We hope you will continue your support so we can help more animals.

Home At Last

BLAKE and HENRY

Blake is a large hound mix and he and his new little brother, Henry the cat, have become great pals.

LUCY

MAYA (and SHILOH)

This great Pyrenees came to us underweight and not spayed but she went to the perfect home where she is adored and treated like a princess. She is pictured here with Shiloh, who is also a WAG dog of a few years ago.

DEXTER

A sensitive soul, a true gentleman. Dexter is an eight-year-old male. He wants to be your one and only pet. He'd do very well in a home where he can just relax and keep you company. He thrives on routine.

Beware of Misleading Information on Weight Loss Pet Foods!

Believe it or not, you can find at least fifty cat/dog foods on the market with promises on their labels that claim everything from “weight loss” to “reduced calorie” to “weight management”.

Unless the food label uses the term “light” or “low calorie”, both of which means that a food can’t contain more than a certain number of calories for its weight, food manufacturers are legally allowed to make diet pet foods as calorically dense as they wish.

And they do—to the point that some so-called “weight management” foods actually contain more calories than non-diet foods. And you can’t easily tell the difference because, unlike food for people, most pet foods do not have to be labeled with calorie counts.

Only those labeled light, low calorie, less calories, or reduced calorie must contain calorie information but not calories per serving.

Current regulations require only that labels state calories per pound of food, which can be useless information for most owners because they feed by volume – half a cup for instance – not by a food’s weight. Thus a well-intentioned switch to diet food can possibly end up making your pet even fatter.

OUR MISSION

Founded in 1996, WAG is an all-volunteer rescue and adoption organization based in central New Hampshire. We are dedicated to providing humane care and shelter for abandoned, abused, and unwanted animals; finding them suitable homes and increasing public awareness of responsible pet ownership.

While we work hard to make each placement permanent, we know that things can change in people's lives. WAG will take back any pet without question, regardless of how long the pet has been in the adoptive home. We are here for an animal's entire life—no matter what.
